VVMUN'22 NEWSLETTER

12 AND 13 NOVEMBER 2022

The Opening Ceremony of VVMUN'22 was held at The Hansraj Hall, crowded with enthusiastic delegates and Press members. The hosts welcomed the chief guest, Dr. N.K. Uberoi, Chairman, Veda Vyasa DAV Public School, Principal, Mrs. Shalini Arora and all the budding delegates sitting in the crowd. The welcome by Mrs. Shalini Arora who also stated the importance of MUN .

The vision for VVMUN 3.0 was "sane and sustainable actions go a long way." She addressed that SDG goals are an important part of mainstream education. MUNs help students to have a better understanding on the global issues at present, it also helps the students to acquire the skills of debating , orating and help them gain knowledge and confidence .

The world we live in today is really unjust. There are end number of things we come across : Gender Inequality, Food Insecurity, poverty, hunger and whatnot. Challenging these issues aid us in understanding the world of ours that is currently in turmoil and deconstruct the change in politics that shape it. In such a scary world, where everything is possible, what each and everyone of you does matters.

PRINCIPAL'S DESK

MRS. SHALINI ARORA

About the Principal

She is a person who leads from the forefront which is evident as her spirit of environmental activism has been inculcated in the students who are now confident and fearless to shed light on issues affecting the environment.

Under her flagship school is working towards becoming a zero waste school. Since becoming the principal she has received many awards including the school leadership award, best educator award and many more.

Our goal is to instill a yearning in today's youth to acquire a comprehensive outlook and a considerate and responsible personality. Through VVMUN 2022, we invite them to come together and discuss matters as members of one united society and deliberate upon the agendas to come up with ingenious solutions while honing their research, critical thinking, public speaking, diplomacy and negotiating skills.

For the past two sessions, like the rest of the world, we too have been longing for the return of face-to-face in-person interactions whose pros are unmatched. The VVMUN 2022, with its premise- "Sane and Sustainable, actions that go a long way" will facilitate the exploration of the dimension of responsible, sustainable policies and actions while assisting the individual and collective development of the participants.

"The power of youth is the common wealth for the entire world. The faces of young people are the faces of our past, our present and our future. No segment in the society can match with the power, idealism, enthusiasm and courage of the young people."

Dear Delegates,
"Great leaders don't set out to be a leader, they set out to make a difference. It is never about the role, but the goal."

You are the leaders in making. It is your ideas, diligence, passion and commitment that will eventually lead you to find solutions to the world's problems, leading to make this planet a better place to live.

You are the leaders in making. It is your ideas, diligence, passion, and commitment that will eventually lead you to find solutions to the world's problems, leading to making this planet a better place to live.

Possession of Nuclear Armaments: Is it Ethical??

“The great can protect themselves, but the humble require the force and shield of law”

These were the words said by the delegate of Israel as they took the floor. They termed nuclear weapons a tool for protection of the weak and for the upliftment of science, agriculture, health etc.

On 16th October, a side event of the United Nations entitled “To safeguard Future Generations: Multi-Faith Responses to the threat of Nuclear Weapons” was hosted by the Permanent Missions of Austria. The speakers- including representatives of Buddhist, Islamic, Catholic, and Evangelical faiths- all agreed that the use of nuclear weapons is morally unacceptable. But does this extend to their sole possession and not use?

Prisha Gakhar Journalist (UNGA)

While one might argue that simple possession of nuclear weapons does not cause destruction of cities and threaten the environment and thousands of people, it is observed that if nuclear monopoly exists between two states i.e. one nation has nuclear weapons and one doesn't; it increases the chances of war by manifold.

Debate: War of Words

"There is a certain charm that executes from the loud voices and angry rebuttals in the United Nations General Assembly a compromise must be reached amidst all the frowns and opinions.

It was sure enough the simulation of the UNGA which focused on the unlawful occupation of territory forced governments, while the proceedings they have been felt slow in the beginning the committee quickly caught up with intense arguments and rising tensions.

There is indeed only one thing that humanity is consistent in that is conflicts anything else or not the one thing we can always accept to be ever present in this world is conflict the tides turn seasons change but the fight never ends.

Anushree Khanna Journalist UNGA

The conclusion is, the game is one that doesn't stray from what you'd expect in Black Ops canon.

The US – as you'd expect – comes out on top, and the nukes nestled away in every major European city are disarmed.

UNITED NATIONS FRAMEWORK CONVENTION ON CLIMATE CHANGE

How About They Just End Human Life and Reborn?

Climate change and global warming are the most prominent issue of our time. In September 2015, 195 countries signed the Paris Agreement to lower greenhouse gas emissions in order to keep the global temperature rise below two degrees Celsius. Climate change is a huge, global threat: it is already pushing many people from their homes, and threatens to have an impact on every person and place on the planet. Though its impacts are not uniform, they are felt disproportionately by communities of poverty and marginalisation.

Urgent action is key to achieving SDG 13 on climate change Reducing CO2 emissions and environmental degradation. otherwise, it will be too late regret.

*Mohit Rathore
Journalist

SDG 13 highlights key milestones since tackling global climate change. The previous Millennium Development Goals were not yet fully exhausted. this climate problem has been maintained and exacerbated by our own negligence. To prevent it, the problem was identified much earlier, but no proactive action was taken afterwards.

Same fight, different contenders

As the delegate of Chile stated, even the smallest of countries can do so much to play a part in this global fight. The policy which was executed in COP 26 is completely distinct to those who propagate that Chile is a country unable to progress, coming from the not so developed Latin America. But the delegate says that even after these multiple conventions, the progress is considered insufficient. The main factor to this being lack of international finance support and investments. And to quote,

The Paris Agreement reaffirms that developed countries should take the lead in providing financial assistance to countries that are less endowed and more vulnerable.

*Ishita Sabharwal
Journalist

The delegate of Chile calls for a rapid action from the UNFCCC to take a call about the present situation to reach the ultimate objective of stabilising the greenhouse gas emissions to 1.5 at the most.

Which is most certainly true, in order to take over on a project a big as this, the world government needs to unite and act as one to create a stable and sustainable future for the upcoming generations

ECONOMICS AND SOCIAL COUNCIL

Infrastructure, industrialisation and innovation- The i's that every "i" should know!

The Economic and Social Council (ECOSOC) is one of the six principal organs of the United Nations. The renowned committee's agenda is indeed one of the most desirable and discussed topics of the modern world. According to the UN report of achieving the estimated target of implementing the seventeen sustainable development goals by 2030, the enhancement of sustainable development goal 9 that aims to build resilient infrastructure, promote sustainable industrialisation and foster innovation has become extremely necessary.

Journalists Khushi Arora, Aniket Arora, Tanya Verma and Saksham Arya reported live from ECOSOC as the committee proceeded with their deliberation.

The committee was indeed a great success as the delegates were keen on discussing and learning as well. The journalists had an amazing time reporting and writing about the sessions.

With such activists and diplomats, the UN may achieve its goal within no time!

International Green Laws- No choice but to obey them?

Infrastructure, industry and innovation are three interconnected pillars which share the objective of achieving sustainable development goal 9. The developing—as well as the developed countries are working extremely passionately to succeed in the achievement of the sustainable development goals by the estimated year 2030.

A resilient infrastructure, sustainable industrialisation and finding long term solutions to problems with resource and energy efficiency including other economic and environmental issues is the key motive at the attempt.

*Khushi Arora
Journalist

It is high time that the countries begin to enforce the laws, again and much more efficiently— To achieve the target set by the UN, the world must work hard and hard enough despite all obstacles coming in the way.

Law breaker or Maker?

"A person with his own criminal history should not be the one to make laws for the country."Nitin gadkari from Bhartiya Janta party stated that members of the parliament with criminal history should not be entertained and strict actions should be taken against them to which the Executive board asked for point of Information and questioned him that L.Murugan from his party was accused of a rape case but his case got dismissed , Nitin Gadkari was dumbstruck by this statement informed that he would reply later via chit.

Ministers are also a part of the same country and the constitution and laws are the same for them so they should be punished for the same. People like them never change they only promise to improve to gain votes and once they are in power they continue discriminating with common people and breaking the laws and keep getting away from the charges pressed against them.

When are we shifting to Pluto?

There's a new wind blowing like I've never known
I'm breathing deeper than I've ever done
I want to love somebody
Love somebody like you
And I've been watching the news lately
It's hard to believe what they're saying is true
The world that I knew is coming undone
Another storm, another tsunami, another economic collapse
And I know we'll push through it
But I just want you to know that I'm with you now
Just one thing that you should know, so here's what goes
You can't change the weather
But you can change the climate

When the floods come with a vengeance
I've been living with worry
About what the future holds
As I see the mountains grow
And the streams dry up
My fears are starting to leak into my sleep
I try to put on a brave face
But inside I'm a wreck
I try to get back to life
But my heart's sinking in quicksand
I can't think of a time that was worse

The Plaque

“Due to the sound judgement of Kazuma Takashi and (other person) many lives were saved and they were killed in the line of duty. The staff of Eidan Subway Association hereby records their good work.” He read this text on the small plaque at the Kasamigasaki station in Tokyo, which pays tribute to Kazuma Takahashi and one other subway employee. Most days Shinji could go without thinking of his dad, but today seeing the inscription transported him back to before that unfortunate day. Shinji’s dad was a loving man, on most days he was more a friend to him than a father figure. It was only when Shinji acted out of line that he was scolded, and he experienced his dad’s authority. The day before the incident had been one of those. He had wanted to go on a school trip to Hokkaido and his dad had adamantly refused. At this Shinji had thrown a tantrum, resulting in a fight with his dad.

March 20th , 1995; it was morning rush hour in Tokyo. In the city’s subway cars, terrorists had leaked the deadly gas Sarin, killing thousands and injecting fear and panic in the minds of millions. Terrorists had dropped bags of Sarin in subway cars and popped them open with the tips of their umbrellas, subsequently escaping in getaway cars. His dad had picked up one of those bags in an attempt to get rid of it and it had let to his demise.

Standing there at the station, Shinji missed his father terribly. When he was younger, everyone had told him that he would grow up to be like his father. Even now, at 33 it was his biggest dream. Clutching his backpack close to him, he went to work.
